The basics

Why is it important to choose the right subjects in Year 11?

Some University of Auckland programmes require you to have taken specific subjects and gained minimum credits in certain subjects. Some programmes have other requirements such as a portfolio, audition and/or interview. For example:

- To gain entry into the Bachelor of Education (Teaching) programme, you will need an NCEA rank score of 150 and will be required to have an interview, provide referees' reports, and agree to a police and safety check.
- To gain entry into the Bachelor of Engineering (Honours) programme, you will need an NCEA rank score of 260, with 17 external Level 3 credits in Calculus and 16 external Level 3 credits in Physics

How do I get accepted to the University of Auckland?

To study at the University of Auckland, you must have a University Entrance qualification and be selected into a programme.

To increase your chances of being accepted, from Year 11 you should:

1. Take the right subjects. These subjects must be selected from the approved NZQA list. www.nzqa.govt.nz/ncea
2. Wherever possible, take Achievement Standards rather than Unit Standards. (The more Achievement Standards you have, the better.)
3. Aim for Excellence (4 points) and Merit (3 points) rather than Achieved (2 points).
4. Make sure you meet the University Entrance Standard. (See below.)

How your rank score is calculated

You will be allocated a rank score based on your best 80 credits at Level 3 or higher over a maximum of five approved subjects, weighted by the level of achievement attained in each set of credits.

If you achieve fewer than 80 credits, the rank score will be based on those credits you have gained at Level 3 over a maximum of five approved subjects and weighted by the level of achievement.

- The rank score will be calculated by awarding the following points for up to 24 credits in each approved subject taken at Level 3. The maximum rank score is 320.

Excellence	4 points
Merit	3 points
Achieved	2 points

- Credits obtained in any required subjects do not have to be among the best 80 credits used for ranking purposes.
- NCEA Level 3 credits achieved in previous years may be counted towards the 80 best credits used for ranking purposes.
- Level 3 subject requirements for a specific programme may be met in Year 12.
- You are strongly encouraged to take achievement standards as preparation for university study.

The University Entrance Standard

You will be qualified for entrance to New Zealand universities in 2022 if you have obtained:

- NCEA Level 3
- Approved subjects: 14 credits in each of three approved subjects at Level 3
- Literacy requirement: 10 credits at Level 2 or above, made up of 5 credits in reading and 5 credits in writing
- Numeracy requirement: 10 credits at Level 1 or above, made up of achievement standards in a range of subjects; or all three numeracy unit standards 26623, 26626 and 26627

For more information on University Entrance, please see NZQA's website.

www.nzqa.govt.nz/ncea

Academic English Language Requirement (AELR)

You must meet the AELR if you're admitted to a University of Auckland bachelors degree programme and you are:

- A domestic student
- An international student applying on the basis of a New Zealand secondary school qualification
- An international student applying on the basis of results at another New Zealand tertiary institution

How do I meet the Academic English Language Requirement?

The AELR may be met through your entry qualification or through satisfactory completion of an approved course in your first 12 months of study.

Meeting the Requirement through your entrance qualification

School qualifications

For those applying on the basis of NCEA results: You will meet the Requirement if you have gained the University Entrance Literacy Standard and a minimum of 17 credits in English at Level 2 and/or 3.* This does not apply to applicants who meet the University Entrance Literacy standard in Te Reo.

For those applying on the basis of Cambridge International results: You will meet the Requirement if you have gained the University Entrance Literacy Standard and a minimum of a D grade in an English course at AS or A Level.

For those applying on the basis of International Baccalaureate (IB) results: You will meet the Requirement if you have gained the University Entrance Literacy Standard and a minimum of 26 points.

Previous study completed elsewhere

For those applying on the basis of results at another tertiary institution, you will meet the Requirement if you have:

- Satisfied the AELR through NCEA, Cambridge International or IB qualifications as outlined above, or
- Passed 60 points or more of study at a tertiary institution and have achieved an acceptable result in DELNA testing.

www.auckland.ac.nz/aelr

*English for Academic Purposes standards US 22750 and US 22751 will contribute to meeting the AELR.

For information regarding DELNA, please see www.delna.auckland.ac.nz

Example of how a rank score for NCEA Level 3 is calculated
Subject	Standard type	Results	Calculate	Rank Score
English	Achievement	6 Excellence 6 Merit 16* Achieved	6 x 4 points 6 x 3 points 12* x 2 points	66
History	Achievement	8 Excellence 10 Achieved	8 x 4 points 10 x 2 points	52

Rank score				236
*Maximum 24 credits per subject. Any points above this limit are excluded. Not included as only best 80 credits are used in calculation of rank score. Only five subjects are included in the calculation.

What if I don't meet the entry requirements for the programme I applied for?

If you don't meet requirements, you can still apply for a place under the University's Undergraduate Targeted Admission Schemes (UTAS).

Find out more about UTAS on page 9. To learn more about alternative pathways for domestic Pacific students see page 14.

Cambridge International Examinations (CIE) and International Baccalaureate (IB)

If you have gained either of these qualifications, you will have different entry requirements and should visit our website.

www.auckland.ac.nz/entry-requirements

International students

If you are an international student, please read pages 113-115 in the Undergraduate Prospectus 2022, which is available on our website.

www.auckland.ac.nz/prospectus

What is a conjoint degree?

You can earn a conjoint degree by studying for two different degrees at the same time. In this way, you gain two qualifications faster than if you'd studied for them individually.

A conjoint degree can give you a distinct advantage in the job market. It's also the opportunity to mix two different areas of interest, so you don't have to give up one for the other.

For example:

- A Bachelor of Engineering with a Bachelor of Laws
- A Bachelor of Commerce with a Bachelor of Science
- A Bachelor of Health Sciences with a Bachelor of Arts

If you're applying for a conjoint programme, you must meet the admission and selection requirement for both programmes of study. Higher rank scores will be required.

Join our Pacific and Māori learning community

There is a University-wide community that is committed to the academic success of Māori and Pacific learners. The faculties have dedicated staff and meeting spaces to support Māori and Pacific students, and they develop their own programmes to complement the teaching and learning environment. Our programmes offer small-group learning, whakawhanaungatanga, wānanga, fono, face-to-face meetings and workshops. These help connect new Māori and Pacific students with senior Māori and Pacific students (tuākana/mentors), academic teaching staff, and key people across the University.

For more information and faculty contact details, visit

“I always knew that I would make it to the University of Auckland. I grew up in a super supportive family – my mum, my older brother and my sister. They have been teaching and supporting me my whole life. I think they were more excited than I was when I got into Engineering and Law. My mum had instilled in me from a young age ‘Ka tae koe ki te ra turanga.’ That means ‘You will reach that level.’ And naturally, as a kid, you believe it – so here I am.

“I have been incredibly blessed while here at the University. I was awarded the University of Auckland Jubilee Scholarship, which provided me with financial assistance over the last three years. I was also fortunate enough to have a First Foundation scholarship, which provided me with paid work experience, financial assistance and a mentor, as well continued pastoral support. I have also received a lot of support from student associations such as the South Pacific Indigenous Engineering Students (SPIES) and the Pacific Island Law Students Association (PILSA). Both have become my family away from home.

“It doesn’t mean the journey has been easy, though. If it wasn’t for the Tuākana programme in my first year of Engineering and the continuous support I receive from the Peer Assisted Study Systems (PASS) programme at Law School, I don’t think I’d be achieving as I have over the last few years. I have definitely taken advantage of the support network that has been put in place for Māori and Pacific students here at Auckland.

“Being here at the University has also made me appreciate my culture more and develop my sense of cultural identity. It has helped me realise the potential in my cultural values and the fact that I can bring that to the table – whether it’s through food or ideas!

“I hope one day I will be able to pass on what I have learnt and help others – in the way that others here have helped me.”

“Growing up on the small island of Niue instilled in me the importance of God and family – the very essence of my support system throughout this rollercoaster university ride.

“I chose to study at the University of Auckland not only because it’s a world-ranked university but also because it’s located in a city that’s rich in Pacific culture and diversity.

“One of the important aspects of a successful and enjoyable university journey is to embrace our minds, abilities and flaws – to be reminded that it is okay to compliment yourself every day, recognise your flaws and learn how to overcome each fear you have. In my first year at university, I was fortunate to be a part of ‘Leadership through Learning’. The programme helped me to grow as a person through nurturing my body and mind because a successful journey starts from within.

“In my 22 years, I’ve been constantly reminded about what education can do, how I can use it to better myself, my family, and community – and how it will lead me to bigger and greater things in life.

“I leave you with the words of my Dad.”

Ko e tau monuina hā hā ke he haau a tau aloalo lima.
Blessings are in the palm of your hands.

Fakaau lahi.

“My life mission is to serve and inspire by designing great buildings. Growing up, I was always encouraged to achieve my best. A key factor in choosing the University of Auckland was its reputation in Architecture.

For me, Architecture is the art of designing buildings with empathy, where there’s not only understanding about the forces of nature but also acknowledgement of specific lifestyles, peoples and cultures. In the future I look to give back to my homeland and my culture, creating a positive impact within the built environment of the Pacific.

“The Tuākana support system has played a significant role in my growth. Currently I am a Tuākana mentor. I look to create safe and encouraging environments, reciprocating all the effort poured into me by my mentors when I transitioned into the tertiary world.

“Now more than ever Architecture needs the creative minds and values of Pacific culture. Values of fa’aaloalo (respect), tautua (service), and alofa (love) are necessities for the built environments in this ever-changing world. Studying at the University of Auckland has been valuable because the different experiences, the range of opportunities, and especially the support provided get me steps closer to my mission. Through designing great buildings, with hard work and service, I strive to give back to my ancestors, my family and my culture.”

“I am a New Zealand born Samoan, who was raised and schooled in Manurewa, South Auckland. I chose to study at the University of Auckland as I originally wanted to pursue a career in pharmacy after being in James Cook High School’s Health Sciences Academy.

“After completing my first (and most challenging) semester of university, I realised that I was not destined for pharmacy. I still had a great passion to serve our Pacific community as I had witnessed the health inequities that Pacific people face. This encouraged me to pursue a Bachelor of Laws alongside my Bachelor of Health Sciences because how will the system reflect the needs of the Pacific population, if we are inadequately represented when making vital decisions?

“I am also a co-founder of the Auckland Pasifika Health Initiative (APHI). This initiative supports all Pacific students undertaking any health-related degree within the University and helps them network with professional health organisations.

“I believe my culture and identity have been strong assets throughout my university journey. I received a Vice Chancellor’s award for Top Pacific Scholars. This has led to many opportunities, such as being a Pasifika ambassador for those coming behind me. I have also been able to build strong relationships and networks within the University, which has given me a sense of belonging.

“There is so much assistance available to help Pacific students succeed. It definitely eases our university journeys. The Pacific Academic Support Strategies (PASS) and the Māori and Pacific Admission Scheme (MAPAS) have enabled me to graduate with a Bachelor of Health Sciences and be accepted into Auckland Law School. I would not be where I am without the continuous support of not only my faith, family and friends, but most importantly our Pacific community at the University.”

Other pathways to study

We have various alternative pathways to bridge the gap between secondary school and the University of Auckland.

UniBound Summer – Academic Enrichment Programme

This programme is designed for Pacific school leavers who could benefit from a preparation programme that introduces them to the University of Auckland and its facilities. It's designed to support future success in students' chosen field of study. UniBound Summer is for Pacific Students and Tōia Ki Waipapa is for our rangatahi Māori.

UniBound Summer is a five-week academic enrichment programme that will take place from January to February 2022; from 9am–4pm Monday to Friday. Registrations are open for all Pacific students who have shown interest in, or already applied for, a University of Auckland programme. Students who have not yet formally applied to the University will receive guidance and assistance in doing so.

UniBound Summer is also open to students of Pacific descent who have not achieved University Entrance or received an offer from the University. They will be considered for a place in the Tertiary Foundation Certificate (TFC). Applications to the TFC will be made for relevant students during UniBound Summer. The UniBound team will provide pastoral and academic support during the TFC.

Acceptance into the UniBound Summer programme does not imply that application for admission to any other University programme will also be accepted.

Tōia Ki Waipapa

Tōia Ki Waipapa is the Māori equivalent to UniBound Summer.

Students enrol in a course in Summer School which can go towards their future degree.

Tōia ki Waipapa runs concurrently with UniBound Summer and is for all Māori school leavers who may be considering a tertiary pathway.

The Kaitohutohu Tautoko Tauria ki Tōia Ki Waipapa is Mereana Toki.

Hikitia Te Ora – Certificate in Health Sciences (CertHSc)

Hikitia Te Ora may be your best starting point for a health career. This one-year programme provides Māori and Pacific students with the skills and content knowledge they need for health professional study in the Faculty of Medical and Health Sciences. If you're a school leaver, or returning to study, the CertHSc can help strengthen your sciences, improve your academic writing and prepare you for success. Anyone wishing to be considered for the CertHSc must attend the Māori and Pacific Admission Scheme's (MAPAS) General Interviews.

“I started my first year studying for a Bachelor of Arts, majoring in Geography and Pacific studies. I picked up Law in my second year. I chose to study at the University of Auckland primarily because of its reputation. I am thoroughly enjoying my studies because of the substantial, thought-provoking knowledge I am gaining on a weekly basis.”

“University comes with a considerable workload, but I feel supported by the various programmes in place that offer extra support for Pasifika students. Prior to my degree studies, I was part of the UniBound programme for Māori and Pacific Island School leavers. UniBound epitomises the spirit of communal success via team-focused activities, and it equips us with important academic skills like critical thinking and effective reading.”

“I am currently part of Tuākana Arts and Science. This is a programme for Māori and Pacific students that offers extra workshops in their respective subjects. I am also part of the Peer Assisted Study Sessions (PASS) mentoring programme, a scheme for Māori and Pacific students.”

“Being a Pacific person at the University of Auckland contributes significantly to my success. I’ve gained a substantial amount of knowledge on the history of Pacific people in New Zealand and the complications they faced in attaining simple livelihoods. I also have a fuller understanding of the contemporary issues facing Pacific peoples but more so the potential that is emerging in response to the various issues. Being a Pacific person in such a big institution has been and can be intimidating but the overwhelming support from other Pacific students and mentors definitely helps erode the nerves.”

“In Samoa, there is a profound proverb that’s important to remember because university is a place where mistakes will be made. You’re on a journey, with all its ups and downs.”

E poto le tautai ae se lana atu I ama.

No matter how skillful or intelligent you are, mistakes are inevitable.

“Raised in South Auckland and a former student of Mangere College, I was determined to pursue the different pathways and support for students who choose to excel in education. I have come to the conclusion that it is not about the school that someone attends but purely about the individual themselves.

“The University of Auckland has always been the right avenue for my chosen field of study as it is the top university in New Zealand. The University has opened my eyes to the various opportunities and the strong support structures offered to Pacific peoples. This consists of academic and pastoral care groups, such as Tuākana and Manaaki, that I have immersed myself in. These groups have provided a safe and reciprocal learning environment, enabling me to grow academically in many areas of the University.

“The UniBound programme played a vital part in my transition from school to the University of Auckland. UniBound helped me build strong networks with like-minded people across many faculties. And I’ve formed great friendships that I treasure to this day. I have gained a lot of knowledge and experience studying here and I recommend this University to my Pacific peers who are looking at furthering their studies.

“Alongside this, I am a recipient of the University of Auckland Academic Potential Scholarship, as well as the Ralph and Eve Seelye scholarship.”

Ua e fa’amaoni i nai mea itiiti, ou te tofia oe e pule i mea e tele. Mataio 25:23

“I have never been more proud to be a Pacific individual undertaking study at the top university in New Zealand. Being a Pacific person at the University gives me a sense of pride, knowing that I not only represent myself, but my aiga, my village, my ekalesia and my Pacific peers.”

“Transitioning from a low decile secondary school in South of Auckland (Mangere College) was not at all easy. South Auckland is populated with Oceanic residents so the environment to me was familiar. It gave me a homely and connected feeling. Entering the University was a complete shock. The atmosphere was different and to be quite frank, it was crazy! But with the right support, and the strong outreach of Pacific people in various organisations and programmes, settling in was smooth.”

“As I near the end of my Fine Arts degree, I reflect on the many great things that I have been part of within the University. The experiences have strengthened my networks and relationships. I was humbled to be selected as an ambassador to represent the University. I get the opportunity to participate in numerous events. It’s rewarding to serve our Pacific people. I am an active student of the Tuākana cohort in Elam School of Fine Arts – a pocket-sized community of Oceanic students pushing for creative perspectives purely from Oceanic people for Oceanic people. I have been involved in different exhibitions where I get to showcase publicly my creative practice. Foremost among them, I received the Alumni scholarship and Denise Gerard scholarship.”

“My chosen conjoint degrees are complementary. The indigenous knowledge and issues of Oceania shared in Pacific studies enhance my practice in photography and sculpture within Fine Arts, so it’s a win-win situation that continues to captivate me. Last but not least, nothing is of course possible without the guidance of our heavenly father who makes the impossible possible. Vi’ia le Atua.”

“Fakalofa lahi atu and warm greetings. I hail from the beautiful island of Niue, where I was raised until moving to New Zealand for education opportunities. I chose to study at the University of Auckland because of the quality education and the support that the University provides, especially for students of Pacific descent. Although the transition from high school to university was hard, I was well supported by various Pacific-centred services such as Tuākana and the Māori and Pacific Admission Scheme (MAPAS).

“I have had the chance to attend wanangas, tutorials, cultural events and many other services that provided opportunities to connect with many others who are on the same journey as me. I was fortunate to gain a University of Auckland Pasifika Scholarship which allowed me the opportunity to stay in the halls of residence and immerse myself in student life. I became confident and independent as I participated in various activities, including public speaking events.

“I am a passionate advocate for Pacific people and am aiming to work in the health sector, with a focus on improving Pacific health. The disadvantages and inequities that we face as a Pacific community are what I aim to eliminate in my future endeavours. My time at the University of Auckland has shaped me into the confident Pacific woman I am today.

“My Niuean culture has instilled the values I need to remain rooted in my identity and keep grounded throughout my journey at university. Taofi mau e fakalofa, I hold onto love, in everything that I do in life, including my studies. I aim to use all that I have to serve others.”

It's time to apply

So you've made your decision on what you want to study, and now it's time to apply. What do you need to do? It's a two-step process to apply for and enrol in your chosen programme.

Find out more
auckland.ac.nz/apply

For some programmes, you may be required to submit supplementary information (eg, a portfolio of work, referee reports, an online form) or to attend an interview/audition.*

If you are not offered a place in the programme(s) of your choice, you will receive an email outlining alternative options. Your final offer of place depends on two things: your admission to the University (which for school leavers may depend on your final school results) and your assessment by the relevant faculty.*

First you need to apply

Go online and complete the Application for Admission. If you haven't already, you'll be asked to sign up for a new account. It's easy, and you'll soon be underway in making your application.
www.auckland.ac.nz/apply

Next you will receive an acknowledgement email asking you to provide supporting documents (and in some cases to complete other requirements*) before your application can be assessed.

Remember, you can apply for more than one programme. We'll be assessing your application, and you can check your application status online at any time. Be patient though – documents can take 3–4 weeks to process during peak admission periods. Some of your documents might take longer to process than others, despite being sent in at the same time.

If your application is successful, we'll email you an offer – normally from mid-January.
