sustenance of knowledge.
Welcome, come forth and fasten your vessel to the carved post, He Taumata Rau.

Nau mai, haere mai

A warm welcome to New Zealand's leading law school.

Kia ora and welcome to your next big chapter.

Law transcends textbooks and lectures.
It is a pursuit of justice, a way to confront pressing global challenges such as climate change and inequality, and a powerful tool for shaping meaningful change in the world.
Here, you will build strong critical thinking and communication skills while exploring how law shapes society. Our Bachelor of Laws (LLB) offers the largest range of Law courses in the country, and you can combine it with another subject in a conjoint degree to suit your passions.

You will be taught by expert academics, have access to outstanding resources such as the Davis Law Library, and be part of a close-knit community that is full of energy and support. From competitions and student clubs to events and hands-on experiences, there are endless opportunities to connect,
grow and thrive. Whether you are dreaming of a legal career or want to use law to spark change, we are excited for you to begin your journey here.

Ko tō ringa ki te ture, ko tō ngākau

Why study with us?

At Auckland Law School, you will join a vibrant and supportive community in the heart of New Zealand’s largest city. Beyond your studies, you can enjoy a rich campus experience with opportunities to connect, collaborate and grow through student societies, mooting competitions and networking events.

Located close to Auckland’s High Court and the city’s cultural and professional centres, the Law School offers an engaging environment where you can build lasting connections and thrive both academically and personally.

Join New Zealand’s leading Law School and benefit from expert teaching, diverse electives, and strong industry connections. With the widest range of Law courses in the country, you can tailor your studies to your interests – from commercial law to Māori and environmental law. Learn from top academics who are shaping legal policy, gain practical experience through internships, and enjoy supportive mentoring and student services. Based in Auckland, you’ll have access to courts, law firms, and government agencies, preparing you for a successful legal career both nationally and internationally.

LLB Programme highlights

- A comprehensive and flexible curriculum with foundational and specialised Law courses.
- The opportunity to combine Law with another discipline through a conjoint degree.
- Practical learning through mooting, legal clinics, and real-world projects.
- Unique focus on Māori and Indigenous legal perspectives.
- Strong graduate outcomes, with alumni working across the law, government, and business sectors.
- Dedicated support, including career guidance to help you succeed.

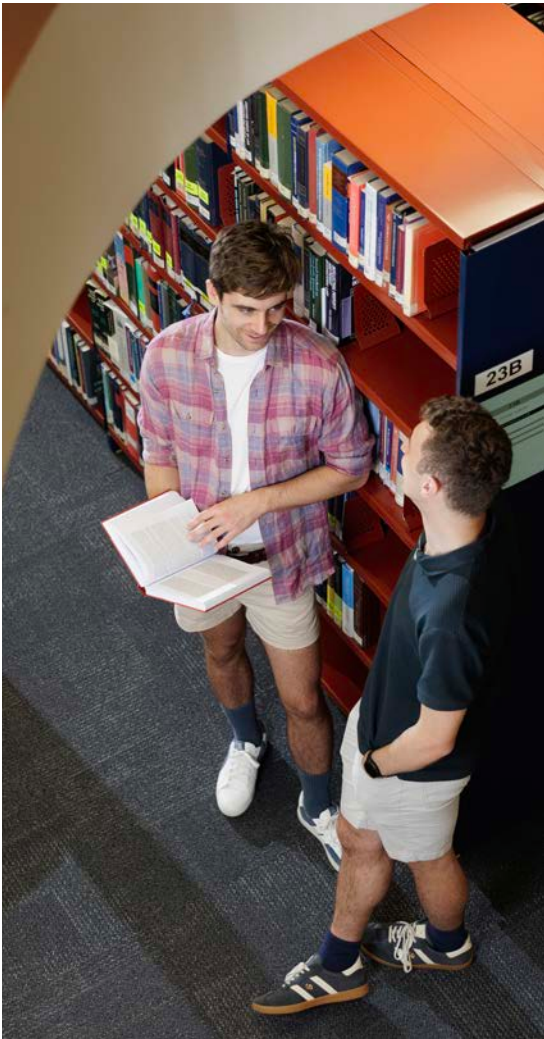

“Whatever your passion, be it the environment, democracy, animal welfare, world peace, indigenous rights, inspiring innovation, criminal justice or anything in between, a legal education will enable you to make a difference.”

Professor Jaime King
Head of Department,
Faculty of Law

“The law guides, shapes, and impacts everything we do in life – which is why studying law is so necessary, valuable, and important.”

Professor Scott Optican

Mātai Ture Law

Studying Law at the University of Auckland is more than just earning a degree; it is a gateway to influence, empowerment and meaningful change. It equips you with sharp analytical thinking, persuasive communication, and a deep understanding of justice and society. These skills are not only highly sought after across industries, but also essential for those who aspire to lead, advocate and make a real impact.

Global success

Waipapa Taumata Rau, University of Auckland is ranked 28th in the world for Sustainability⁴. Our research and teaching are creating meaningful impact, shaping a better future for Aotearoa New Zealand and beyond.

Law School rankings

Auckland is ranked 59th in the world⁵ out of more than 1,500 Law schools. This recognition reflects the quality of our teaching, the depth of our research, and the success of our graduates on the global stage.

Reputation and resources

We are New Zealand's largest and most internationally recognised Law School. We offer the widest range of courses and are home to the Davis Law Library, the country's most extensive legal collection.

Taught by experts

Our programmes are delivered by leading scholars, practitioners and international experts, who bring cutting-edge research and real-world insights into the classroom.

A valuable degree

An Auckland LLB develops transferable skills in analysis, communication and problem-solving. These qualities are highly valued by employers in New Zealand and worldwide.

Location

We are situated in the heart of Auckland's legal precinct and right next to the High Court.

Uncover the fine print

Ready to study Law your way?

At the undergraduate level, you will have access to the widest range of Law courses in Aotearoa New Zealand, enabling you to shape your degree around what truly interests you.

At our core, we are committed to making a real difference in the classroom, through research, and in the wider world. If you care about fairness, equity and using your voice to stand up for what matters, this is where you will grow your power.

Thinking big? Law is your launchpad. Whether you want to influence policy, defend human rights, or bring bold ideas into government, business or technology, a legal education provides the tools, confidence and credibility to turn ambition into action.

If you have more than one passion, you can pursue a conjoint degree, combining Law with Arts, Commerce, Global Studies, Health Sciences, Science or Music. This is a smart way to broaden your skills and open up additional career opportunities.

You will also be based in the heart of Auckland's legal district, surrounded by courts, firms and changemakers. When it is time to study, the Davis Law Library, the largest law library in New Zealand, has everything you need to succeed.

My parents cheered me on every step of the way, they never failed to remind me how proud they were, and they were very understanding of my stress-induced mood swings, my siblings were too, actually,”

Law and Arts graduate Siobhan Sharkey, who draws strength from her pioneering mother and ‘prayer warrior’ grandmother, was awarded her conjoint degree on 15 May 2025. She was among 25 graduates with Pacific heritage graduating from Auckland Law School.

The daughter of alumna Tania Sharkey, New Zealand's first District Court judge of Tongan descent in the family jurisdiction, and granddaughter of Kalolaine Fotu Sharkey, Siobhan says her parents and grandmother have been some of her biggest supporters.

Siobhan's heritage has roots in the village of Houma, Tongatapu in Tonga, and the town of Strabane in Northern Ireland, where her late grandfather, William Sharkey, was from.

Growing up, Siobhan spent a year living in Tonga with family in Fanga, on the island of Tongatapu near the capital of Nuku'alofa.

“The love and hard work of my family in Tonga continues to ground and motivate me to work hard, so that one day I will return the same love they have always shown me.”

Did you know?

- Auckland Law School offers courses that explore the intersection of law and culture, including Māori and Pacific legal systems.
- Students can participate in community law projects and mooted competitions that reflect Aotearoa's bicultural foundations.

Courses rooted in te ao Māori and Pacific perspectives were the most enriching part of my education.”

From music gigs to overseas travel, Sione Roberts made the most of university life, but it was his focus on Māori and Pacific legal perspectives that gave his studies real purpose.

Growing up in Hawke's Bay, Sione loved music and sport but admits school was a “mixed bag” until he set himself the challenge of giving his best to every subject. That decision carried him through a conjoint Law and Music degree while performing in bands, debating, travelling, and modelling for brands like Zambesi and Hallensteins.

“One of my key reasons for studying Law was to understand how the law has caused inter-generational harm to Māori, and how we, as Māori lawyers, can change the law.”

Courses in te ao Māori and Pacific perspectives were the most enriching part of his studies. South Pacific Legal Studies revealed how Samoa's legal system has shaped the LGBTQIA+ community, while Pacific Music and Dance connected him to his Māori and Samoan whakapapa.

LLB conjoint degree structure

Conjoint combinations:
Arts, Commerce, Communications,
Global Studies, Health Sciences,
Music, Science

Conjoint degrees enable you to complete the requirements of two degrees simultaneously, only adding one year of study to the longest degree in most cases. Admission can be in the first year or at any point before you have passed no more than 270 points for either component degree. Continuation depends on you maintaining your academic record to a set standard.

Law Course Non-Law Course Elective Gen Ed Course

Other Conjoint Courses may be taken in any of years 2–6, including Summer School.

(i) The conjoint plan allows you to complete your degree in five years with a heavier workload in four of those years, but you may choose a more manageable pace.

(ii) The order of LAW 201–241 can be adjusted in Years 2 and 3, as illustrated in the diagram.

(iii) If you're planning a 60-point or 120-point Law Exchange in your final year, you may need to adjust your degree structure and consider Summer School courses.

^aWe recommend you choose WTRAED 100 Waipapa Taumata Rau: Introduction to Te Pūtahi Mātauranga, Arts and Education as one of your General Education courses.

^bLAW 458 is an elective for the LLB, but the Council for Legal Education (CLE) requires it if you're intending to be admitted to the Bar.

“I liked the variety of papers you had to complete as part of the conjoint. Getting exposure to so many different aspects of law and history has helped me in identifying the type of person I am, the values I hold and my aspirations.”

Conjoint combinations

Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Laws

The BA/LLB lets you choose from a wide range of subjects offered by the faculties of Arts and Education and Law. You can create your own combination of subjects, provided they comply with the course regulations of both degrees.

Bachelor of Commerce/Bachelor of Laws

If you intend to practice in commercial, taxation and company areas, then a BCom/LLB is an excellent choice. You will also gain a broad background suitable for a position in management or public administration.

Bachelor of Communication/Bachelor of Laws

With the BC/LLB conjoint you'll gain an understanding of the roles communication and law have in our world, along with the ability to navigate these specialised areas.

Bachelor of Global Studies/Bachelor of Laws

With a BGlobalSt/LLB conjoint, you can complement your legal skills and knowledge with the study of global issues. This will help you to take on the challenges of global politics, law and human security.

Bachelor of Health Sciences/Bachelor of Laws

The BHSc/LLB offers you a sound introduction to law and the healthcare sector. This could lead to a career in medical law, health policy, health management or healthcare ethics.

Bachelor of Music/Bachelor of Laws

If you want a degree that provides you with two distinct skill sets, the BMus/LLB is an excellent choice. Follow your passion for music while growing valuable analytical, communication and research skills – and gain an understanding of legal ethics, professional responsibility and the role law plays in society.

Bachelor of Science/Bachelor of Laws

If you have an aptitude for science, a conjoint BSc/LLB degree gives you an excellent opportunity to construct a programme of study that can lead to a career in environmental law, intellectual property law, or science.

There is considerable flexibility in planning conjoint programmes. The sample LLB conjoint degree structure opposite is only one of several possible plans.

My lecturers at Auckland Law School were incredibly committed to teaching us how to apply legal principles in the real world. I was often reminded that law is a service industry and felt motivated to use my education to serve others.”

“One of the most valuable parts of studying here was learning how the law always connected back to real-world issues. Lecturers like Professors Janet McLean KC, Mark Henaghan, and Dr Arie Rosen really shaped the way I think about law and its role in society.

“I studied a conjoint in Law and Engineering, which was definitely challenging, but with incredible support from friends, family, and staff I achieved more than I thought possible. I completed both degrees in five years, was named a senior scholar in Engineering, and received The Law Association Prize for the best undergraduate record in Law.

“My advice for anyone thinking about studying Law is to go for it – even if it feels daunting. If you commit yourself and connect with the people around you, you'll thrive.”

Student exchanges and study abroad

Gain a global perspective by completing part of your degree at an overseas university, while earning credits towards your University of Auckland Law degree.

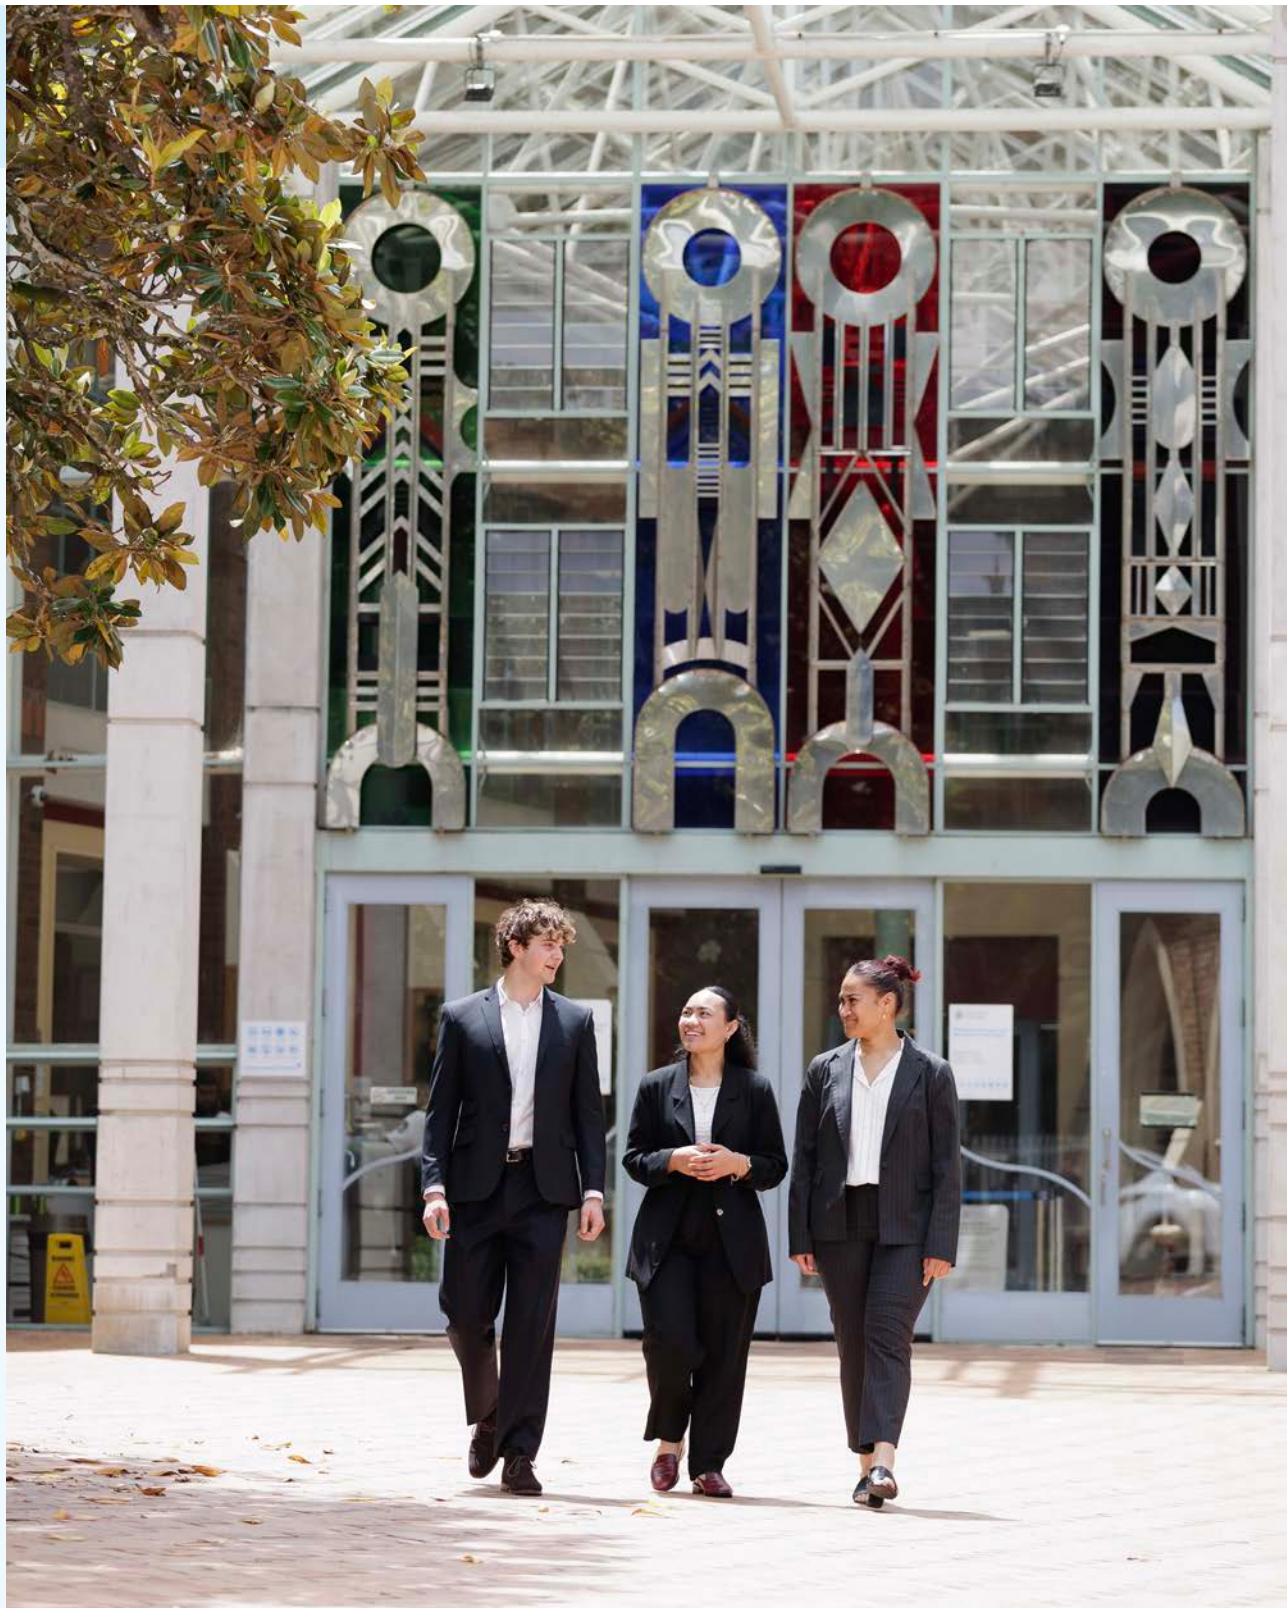

Student exchanges

Choose from over 30 partner universities in countries such as Denmark, Germany, China, Spain, USA, UK, France, Japan, Singapore, and Australia. Exchanges are usually in your final year and can last one or two semesters, while you remain enrolled at the University of Auckland.

A Law student exchange enhances cultural awareness, offers unique courses, provides a comparative view of legal systems, and creates opportunities for lasting friendships and international connections.

Study abroad

You can study at an overseas university outside of our exchange partnerships, but you'll usually need to pay that university's fees. Any enrolment and credit towards your Auckland degree must be approved in advance.

The Law School has been extremely helpful and supportive as I have been studying part time whilst also doing high performance sport on the side. Uni life should be a mixture of hard work and fun, you just have to keep a balance.”

George chose to study Law because of his interest in written subjects at school and his interest in public speaking and problem solving. He decided to embrace a Bachelor of Commerce/Bachelor of Laws conjoint degree as he had a keen interest in the commercial side of law.

What George enjoyed most about the Auckland Law School were the close-knit environment and social aspects of the degree.

The application and enrolment process

1

Apply online

Go to auckland.ac.nz/applynow and complete the online Application to Study form.

- Select 'Bachelors' as your programme type.
- Choose 'Bachelor of Laws' as your programme.
- For Major/Specialisation select 'Law Part I'.

Apply for a non-Law degree and a conjoint programme

This step is essential. Once you have applied for your LLB, you must also apply for:

- A standalone non-Law bachelors degree, and
- The conjoint degree that combines Law with your chosen non-Law programme.

Admission to a conjoint programme has higher entry requirements. We strongly recommend submitting all three applications as a backup.

Submit requested information

Provide personal information, transcripts, and any other documents required.

4

Receive offer of place

Your LLB Part I application will be assessed once your other degree applications are in. Decisions are usually released in mid-January.

- You may receive single-degree offers before your conjoint decision.

Accept your offer of place

Please make sure to formally accept your offer for the degree programme as soon as possible. If later you receive a conjoint offer, you can switch by contacting a Student Hub.

Enrol in your courses

Once accepted, you can enrol in your courses through Student Services Online.

7

Pay your fees

Complete your enrolment by paying fees by the due date.

Entry requirements

Auckland Law School welcomes aspiring legal minds with accessible entry pathways and world-class opportunities. If you gain University Entrance, you're already on track to begin your journey in law.

University Entrance

To be admitted, you must have University Entrance (UE):

- NCEA Level 3
- 14 credits at Level 3 in each of three approved subjects
- Literacy: 10 credits at Level 2 or above
- Numeracy: 10 credits at Level 1 or above

Visit NZQA online for more details.

nzqa.govt.nz/ncea

LLB Part II

Admission to LLB Part II is selective and based on academic merit.

To be considered, you must have:

- Passed LAW 121G Law and Society
- Passed LAW 131 Legal Method and LAW 141 Legal Foundations with at least a C+ in each course
- Passed at least 75 points (or the equivalent) of non-law courses
- Achieved a minimum LawGPA of 3.00 (C+)

Selection is based on your LawGPA, which includes grades from Law and non-Law courses.

Recent entry LawGPAs have ranged between a GPA of 5.0 and 7.0 (equivalent to a grade between B and A-).

Visit us online for more details and updates.

auckland.ac.nz/llbpart2

Requirements may change.

Academic English Language Requirement (AELR)

All undergraduate students must meet the AELR to ensure they have the academic English skills needed for study success.

If you haven't met AELR through your school qualification, you can complete an approved course in your first year.

Visit us online for more information.

auckland.ac.nz/aelr

International Students

If English is not your first language, you must provide evidence of English-language proficiency.

For LLB Part I, this can be shown by:

- An IELTS (Academic) score of 6.0 overall, with no band less than 5.5, or equivalent or

- Completion of the Foundation Certificate in English for Academic Purposes (FCertEAP) or EPUS programme

For direct entry into LLB Part II, graduates must have an IELTS score of 7.0 overall, with no band less than 6.0.

Visit us online or make contact for more information.

Conjoint applicants

If you're applying for a conjoint degree, you should submit three separate applications:

1. Bachelor of Laws
2. Your chosen non-Law bachelors degree (e.g. Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Commerce)
3. The conjoint degree (e.g. Bachelor of Laws conjoint with Arts)

Apply several months in advance to allow time for processing.
