

VOLUNTEERS WANTED

WE WANT TO HEAR YOUR VOICE

You are invited to participate in an interview-based study

We want to understand why babies of different ethnicities born with serious heart conditions in New Zealand have different outcomes.

Sharing your experience will help us do this and help babies in the future.

Who can take part? Any parent(s) or caregiver(s) of a baby recently diagnosed with a life-threatening congenital cardiac condition.

What will it involve? Two one-hour interviews, exploring your experience of receiving the diagnosis of a heart problem in your child. These will either be by video-conference call or face-to-face at a time and place of your choosing. Whānau / family / support are welcome to attend.
