Teaching system

Teaching method:

The teaching method used at the Faculty of Law is problem based instruction. The main learning process is a series of problems which are based on a concrete course goal. The students work in groups and are responsible for giving accounts at seminars. Furthermore, students work not only with the technical application of rules, but also deal with the essential problems that are common for all lawyers: structuring facts in a material, distinguishing what is the actual problem in a complex course of events, arguing and putting arguments to a test as well as criticizing and questioning.

Courses consist mainly of seminars with a few lectures. Please note that attendance at all seminars is compulsory.

Credit system:

All second level courses, including the law courses in English, run for ten or twenty weeks and represent 15 or 30 ECTS-credits each. One week corresponds to 1,5 ECTS-credits. You attend only one course during a period.

The normal workload is 40 hours per week and that includes teaching, preparation in groups, written assignments and self-studies.

Grading system:

ECTS and the Swedish grading scale for law students.

Total number of credits /academic year:

60 ECTS

Language courses

Language courses:

All exchange students have the chance to study a course in basic Swedish for free, a course worth 7.5 ECTS that runs every semester. This course is part time and designed to be taken parallel with regular studies. Application takes place at the same time as Law courses. For more information about the content of the Basic Swedish courses, see the Department of Scandinavian Languages
