

Knight-Hennessy Scholars Stanford University

Stanford University's Knight-Hennessy Scholars program aims to address the world's grand challenges through innovation and collaboration by developing a community of emerging leaders who will work across disciplines and cultures. The program is designed to empower promising graduate students to serve as courageous agents of change. The future global leaders in each diverse cohort will gain valuable leadership skills through the experiential King Global Leadership Program and receive funding to pursue graduate education at Stanford.

The Knight-Hennessy Scholars program is named for Phil Knight (MBA '62), co-founder of Nike, Inc., and John Hennessy, 10th president of Stanford University (2000-2016).

Eligibility

Citizens of all countries are welcome to apply. You are eligible to apply if you earned your undergraduate or bachelor's degree in 2014 or later (2012 for US military). You may be selected as a Knight-Hennessy Scholar if you apply to enroll in any full-time graduate degree program at Stanford. (For example, DMA, JD, MA, MBA, MD, MFA, MPP, MS and/or PhD). Stanford dual- and joint-degree programs also are eligible. The program will select a cohort of up to 90 promising graduate students entering Stanford in autumn 2021.

Denning House

As a Stanford graduate student, you will likely live in graduate housing with other Stanford students. In addition to graduate housing, Knight-Hennessy Scholars also have a convening hub on campus, Denning House. As the location of most of the King Global Leadership Program curriculum and experiences, it offers spaces for large meals, quiet study, casual conversations, intimate seminars, and group collaborations.

Leadership Development Platform

The King Global Leadership Program offers a flexible set of activities for Knight-Hennessy Scholars. Through an intentionally diverse blend of experiences and events, you build on your graduate degree program with leadership development, mentorship, and experiential learning. As a scholar, you have:

- Conversations with authors, artists, experts, and global leaders.
- Collaborative experiences through off-site weekend impact-a-thons and retreats to learn about each other, share leadership insights, and begin to address complex challenges. You also may participate in culturally and contextually enriching global study trips.
- Shared meals that build communication and collaboration skills in different formats such as workshops or seminars.
- Seminars that foster critical thinking and analytical skills.
- Community events centered around shared experiences and fellowship, such as Town Halls, movie nights, Women in STEM, and deep dives to learn about each other.

Funding

Your education as a Knight-Hennessy Scholar is funded for any graduate degree(s) at Stanford to which you are admitted at the time of your selection as a scholar. Knight-Hennessy Scholars receive the following for up to three years of graduate study (if your degree program exceeds three years, then your graduate program will fund the remainder of your education to the extent consistent with its standard funding commitment):

- Funding applied directly to cover tuition and associated fees.
- A stipend for living and academic expenses (such as housing and meals, books, academic supplies, instructional materials, local transportation, and reasonable personal expenses).
- A travel stipend intended to cover an economy-class ticket for one annual trip to and from Stanford.
- Access to a scholar academic enrichment fund to support academic endeavors (e.g., research, conference travel) or collaborative projects with social impact.

Admission

We encourage you to view the Knight-Hennessy Scholars application process as a chance for structured reflection – for you to learn about yourself and for us to learn more about you. The byproduct of that reflection is the application that you submit.

In selecting Knight-Hennessy Scholars, we look primarily at three areas: independence of thought, purposeful leadership, and civic mindset. The application includes a resume, transcript, short answers and essays, recommendations, and a video. Watch our videos for tips from scholars.

You must apply to the Knight-Hennessy Scholars program and a Stanford graduate degree program(s) separately. While we review your applications independently, we can select you as a Knight-Hennessy Scholar only if you are admitted to your graduate degree program. Please visit gradadmissions.stanford.edu as a resource, then visit the website of your graduate degree program for information about its specific requirements.
