To Whom it May Concern

This letter provides additional information regarding the University of Auckland's Fast Track Conditional Offer process for applicants who have received an alternative programme offer.

In some cases, where an applicant has applied for a programme with higher entry requirements, the University may issue a conditional offer for an alternative programme aligned with the applicant's intended academic pathway and background. This process is intended to maximise study options and support student success at the University of Auckland. The University has discussed this process with Immigration New Zealand (INZ), and INZ has confirmed that these offers may be used to support offshore student visa applications.

Where applicable, applicants who later meet the relevant entry requirements may subsequently receive an unconditional offer for their preferred programme. If the required conditions are not met, applicants may instead continue with the alternative programme offered by the University, subject to meeting all relevant admission requirements.

This letter is provided for general information purposes only and does not constitute immigration advice or guarantee future admission outcomes.

Note: The Fast Track Conditional Offer contains standard wording stating that it should not be used for a student visa application. Unfortunately, this wording cannot be removed at this stage due to current system limitations.
