Cultural Collections

Four research-level repositories housing rare and unique material spanning the arts, humanities and sciences. Specialist staff preserve and make the material accessible and provide tailored support services for research, teaching and learning.

University of Auckland Art Collection

- More than 1200 paintings, prints, photographs, sculptures and video primarily by New Zealand artists on permanent display.
- Invaluable resource for teaching and research.

Special Collections

- 1000+ archival collections, with a strong New Zealand and Pacific focus. Strengths include literary, architectural, political, trade union and University-related material.
- Extensive rare books and published collections covering most disciplines, from the 15th century onwards.

Archive of Māori and Pacific Sound

- Internationally-significant collection of audio-visual recordings of vocal and instrumental music, oral histories, stories and language resources from Aotearoa and the Pacific.
- The material dates from 1919 to the present.

Media Services

- More than 150,000 hours of archived TV and Radio broadcasts, and streaming content.
- Highlights include Chapman Archive of NZ news and current affairs from the mid-1960s onwards and Māori television programming since the 1980s.

Dr Jo Simons

MIS (LIBS, ARCR), Well., BSc, MSc (Hons I), PhD, Auck.

Team Leader - Research Serv

In: Research Services > Research and Collections > Libraries and Learning Services

Biography

Jo graduated with a MSc (Hons I) in Plant Science from the University of Auckland in 2000. She worked as a Research Technician at the PostHarvest Division of HortResearch for three years before starting her PhD in Plant Molecular Biology at the University of Auckland in collaboration with HortResearch. Her research project investigated genetic and hormonal controls of vegetative branching in petunia. After completing her PhD she took up a post-doctoral position in Forensic Biology at the Institute of Environmental Science and Research (ESR) Ltd. in 2007. Jo joined Libraries and Learning Services at the University of Auckland in 2014, and took up a position as Subject Librarian for the School of Environment in September 2015. Her current role as Team Leader Research Services, and Research Adviser for the Faculty of Science started in October 2018.

Her research project for her Master of Information Studies investigated the barriers to sharing research data in tertiary institutions and how the perspectives of researchers and information professionals differ.
