Exceptional circumstances

If you believe your unsatisfactory academic progress was due to disabilities, impairments, medical or other exceptional circumstances, you can apply to your Faculty for reconsideration of your academic standing.

To make an application we need a covering letter detailing your grounds for reconsideration, including supporting evidence. Evidence should account for the whole period of your unsatisfactory progress, and should:

- Confirm the exceptional circumstances and verify the dates;
- Explain how this affected your academic progress; and
- Contain a recommendation about whether you can now continue with your study without being affected by the exceptional circumstances.

Your application for reconsideration will be considered by your faculty, and they will make a decision either confirming your current status, or allowing you to re-enrol under specific conditions.

For further information regarding Academic Standing, please refer to the Enrolment and Programme Regulations (56-69) at: www.calendar.auckland.ac.nz/en/genregs/enrolment-and-programme.html.

Submission date

We strongly recommend you submit the application to your faculty as soon as possible.
