Best of luck with exams!

Kia ora Amelia,

We know it's been a tough semester, with most of the time being spent in lockdown doing online learning. As we approach the end of Semester Two, we hope everything goes well with your online exams in the coming weeks. In this email you'll find various ways the University can support you, as well as some fun ways to round off the year and look to 2022.

Remember, the University of Auckland is a prestigious institution and everyone who is accepted to study with us deserves to be here. Do your best, trust yourself, and remember to take a break every now and then!

Study spaces

At Alert Level 3, limited study spaces are available at KEIC, OGGB, Tai Tonga, and Tai Tokerau if your home environment is not suitable to study or sit your online exam.

Spaces on campus during exams

All exams this semester are online, and students can take their exams from anywhere. Limited non-bookable spaces are available throughout the University on a first-come, first-served basis to meet level 3 spacing requirements. Check out when the library and campuses are open.

Introducing UoA's new virtual assistant

With the reality of what life is now like in a global Covid-19 pandemic, the University, like many organisations, has been re-looking at the way it can support students in a fast-moving and, at times, uncertain landscape. Meet the Student Contact Centre's new team member, in the shape of a chatbot, UoA Assistant!
