Auckland

Māori name: Tāmaki Makaurau

Population: 1.6 million

Nickname: The City of Sails

Climate: Temperatures range from an average of 24°C (75°F) in summer to 16°C (60°F) in winter.

Landscape: Two harbours, 50 islands, 48 volcanoes, hundreds of beaches, 35 regional parks, rainforests.

Auckland is a great base for exploring further afield. Many of New Zealand's top attractions and most striking landscapes are within a few hours' drive. Our study abroad students often spend weekends exploring the North Island or fly to the stunning South Island during the two-week semester break.

Our campus and accommodation are in the heart of cosmopolitan Auckland. Placed between the Pacific Ocean and the Tasman Sea, Auckland's unique geographical position means you can enjoy living close to stunning beaches, untouched forest and tranquil islands. Add to that Auckland's great urban lifestyle, and it's clear why Auckland has been ranked third for quality of life.

HARRY GUNNING

Study Abroad student from University of St Andrews, Fife, Scotland.

“The University of Auckland is one of the best schools in the world for my degree pathway and I loved the idea of travelling alongside my studies. I took papers in Marine Ecology, Conservation Ecology, Fisheries and Aquaculture, and Freshwater Ecology. Part of my conservation class investigated Māori communities and how interconnected they are with nature – I found it fascinating!

“Studying here has allowed me to experience a whole new culture and be exposed to life outside the bubble of my home university. The cultural diversity has made a massive impact on how I study and how I live my day-to-day life.

“I aspire to work as a natural history and documentary filmmaker. Studying abroad has allowed me to develop my skills in order to break into that career, to see the world from a different perspective, and to generate a worldwide network of job opportunities after I graduate.”

Expand your mind

Make the most of your study abroad experience by choosing subjects and courses that are unique to New Zealand or unavailable at your home institution.

Māori and Pacific Studies

Auckland is well known as the largest Pacific city in the world. Immerse yourself in New Zealand's unique indigenous and diverse culture by taking courses in Māori and Pacific Studies at the University of Auckland. Building an understanding of diverse indigenous perspectives in our changing global will help you developing skills for an international career.

You can develop an understanding of the Pacific region and its peoples from diverse cultural groups across many different islands, including Samoa, the Cook Islands, Tonga, Niue, Fiji, Tokelau, Tuvalu and Kiribati. Expand your cultural awareness through courses in Māori/Pacific languages, arts, society, performing arts, politics and history.

Social Sciences

Our School of Social Sciences is home to Anthropology; Communication; Conflict and Terrorism Studies; Criminology; Development Studies; Gender Studies; Media, Film and Television; Politics and International Relations; Public Policy; Screen Production; and Sociology.

The School engages critically with researching issues confronting humanity in the past, the present, and into the future. Our unique position in Auckland gives us the opportunity to engage with diverse communities, including our Māori and Pacific communities, as well as communities across Asia and the Pacific Rim.

Unique opportunities

Maximise your study abroad experience through our short-term programmes and unique opportunities.

Screen Tools – Short course

Screen Tools is a hands-on course designed to set you up with the tools you need to launch your career in film, television and digital media industries. Instructed by The Hobbit actor John Callen, this course is ideal for students with an interest in filmmaking or scriptwriting. Over four weeks, students on this course work as a production team to produce a serial drama. Field trips to the Hobbiton movie set and Weta Workshop design and effects studio are included.

International Research Programme (Faculty of Arts)

Spend six (or eight) weeks developing multidimensional research skills as you contribute to research projects that tackle complex, global issues. Research topics range from refugee resettlement to political branding and indigenous identity. Students will join a cohort of study abroad research students and work alongside Faculty of Arts academics on a variety of research tasks. Research students will begin the programme with an excursion that introduces students to the cultural context of Aotearoa New Zealand. Full project details can be found on the University of Auckland Study Abroad website.

www.auckland.ac.nz/studyabroad

Internships (Faculty of Arts)

Our Faculty of Arts gives study abroad students the chance to gain work experience through undertaking a project in a real-world workplace. The course is career-focused and gives you the opportunity to develop and showcase a variety of transferable skills of value to the workplace: research, critical analysis, report writing, teamwork, project coordination, problem-solving, communication and presentation. It is available for students who have completed two years of degree studies and mainly take courses within our Faculty of Arts.

BRIDGET ALANIVA

Study Abroad student from Michigan
Technological University, USA.

"As a Communication, Culture, and Media major, my research entails hands-on learning about different cultures and the way people interact in society. Doing research abroad is one of the best ways to gain this experience, as it combines living in a different culture with doing historical research about it. It is incredible to see the influence of Māori culture around campus. The University and the surrounding city with all its cultural diversity is what makes it such a beautiful place to live, and adds to the experience I was looking for when I came to New Zealand."

AUDREY KAN

Study Abroad student from Seattle University, Washington, USA.

"I chose the University of Auckland because it is New Zealand's world-ranked University, and I wanted to experience a different classroom environment. I'm currently taking PACIFIC 200: Pacific Studies. The Pacific isn't covered in the US curriculum, and I knew very little about the history, culture, and issues of Pacific peoples.

"New Zealand has the largest concentration of Pacific Islanders in the world, so my time here is valuable as my perspective is refined with each Pacific Studies lecture. The cultural diversity at the University and in Auckland definitely adds to my experience.

"Studying abroad is a great tool for increasing my international job prospects, expanding my global network of contacts, and building an international resume. By the end of my study abroad experience at the University of Auckland, my goal is to become a more globally competent individual, and cultivate personal growth, open-mindedness and an expanded worldview."
