Tāraitia a anamata Create the future

Nau mai, haere mai ki Te Kura Akoranga me te Tauwhiro Tangata, Waipapa Taumata Rau. Greetings, Talofalava, Mālō e lelei, Fakaalofa lahi atu, Kia orana and a warm welcome to you.

If you're looking to play a key role in creating a better future, then you've come to the right place. Our programmes in Teaching, Education, Social Work, and Sport, Health and Physical Education will prepare you to inspire young people, find solutions to social challenges and improve health and wellbeing.

Now more than ever, communities need motivated and skilled educators, social workers and health leaders to drive positive social change. Our students and graduates are doing exactly that. They're inspiring people to reach their full potential, supporting our most vulnerable, and empowering communities to live healthy, active and fulfilling lives. Choosing to study with us could be a life-changing decision, not just for you, but also for the hundreds of people whose lives you will influence in your future work.

Here at the Faculty of Education and Social Work we are proud of our record of educating students for over 130 years. Our teaching and research are world class, with a commitment to social justice at the heart of everything we do. We're New Zealand's top-ranked university for our academic programmes* and the largest provider of teachers for schools in Aotearoa New Zealand.

We currently have more than 4,000 students enrolled across our campuses in central Auckland, South Auckland and Northland. We are proud of our diverse student body and our relationships with Māori and Pacific communities as well as our international partnerships.

It is an exciting time for the education, social work, and health and sport sectors. While there are immense challenges, our staff and students are forging new knowledge and innovative practices that are transforming our communities to benefit everyone. Join us and help create a better future.

Kia kaha, kia māia, kia manawanui rā hoki.

Study with us

We offer the best teaching and research in the country.* We model a collaborative, culturally diverse and social justice-driven learning environment to equip you with tools to make a positive difference in people's lives.

The University of Auckland – top in NZ

The University of Auckland is the leading university in New Zealand. Our strong international reputation means our qualifications are well respected overseas, and our graduates are highly prepared for success. We offer a wide range of impressive facilities, resources and student support services, which provide an enjoyable and encouraging learning environment for all.

The Faculty of Education and Social Work

Leading learning, changing lives to achieve excellence and equity

For Education as a subject, the University of Auckland is ranked first in New Zealand. We are the only New Zealand university in the world's top 50.*

We have a proud history of over 130 years as a high-quality teacher and professional education provider, and more than 30 years' experience in social services education. We're always evolving to bring you the best educational experiences possible, with a commitment to social justice at the heart of everything we do.

education.auckland.ac.nz/our-faculty

World-class teachers

Our programmes are informed by leading research and delivered by experienced professionals who are spearheading the latest developments in their fields and are passionate about their work.

Practical experience in the workplace

Our students have extensive opportunities during their study to experience first-hand what it's like to work in New Zealand schools, centres, social services agencies and health organisations. Education and Social Work students spend up to 24 weeks on placements (practicum) in the workplace, working alongside professionals and mentors in their sector.

Support for your study journey and beyond

In your first year, you will be assigned a student mentor through the First Year Experience programme. Your mentor will support you as you transition to university study and student life. We also have extensive academic and personal support services for the faculty, including dedicated support services for Māori and Pacific students.

Social justice and te ao Māori

A commitment to social justice is at the heart of all our teaching and learning. All undergraduate students study te ao Māori, including te reo Māori and tikanga Māori, in preparation for careers in diverse cultural settings. Our programmes are underpinned by the principles of Te Tiriti o Waitangi and teaching in an Aotearoa New Zealand context. At the beginning of your learning journey, you will be welcomed onto the faculty marae as manuhiri and become tangata whenua, as part of our wider whānau of students and staff.

Four campus options to choose from

The Faculty of Education and Social Work provides a supportive and friendly learning environment at four campus locations: Epsom, Central Auckland, South Auckland and Whangārei. Study in Epsom or Central Auckland to experience learning in one of the world's most diverse cities, or choose South Auckland or Whangārei and become part of the local community during your studies.

Note: Future facilities planning indicates that courses currently based at Epsom Campus will be taught on City Campus from 2024. Students starting a qualification at Epsom in 2023 may complete subsequent years at the City Campus.

Guaranteed accommodation

High school leavers enrolled in the first year of a bachelors degree or foundation certificate at the Epsom Campus have the benefit of a guaranteed place in a University of Auckland Hall of Residence, provided their application is submitted to Accommodation Solutions by Thursday 30 September 2022.

Preparation programmes

Our preparation programmes are an excellent path into university study for many students. You could gain entry into degree programmes you may not have the grades to apply for, ease your transition into student life, or simply increase your confidence for university study.

Tertiary Foundation Certificate – Education and Social Work Pathway

Highlights:

- Gain a recognised academic qualification so you can apply for admission into a bachelors programme.
- Develop study skills and the confidence needed for successful tertiary study.
- Learn in a supportive setting and become familiar with the university environment of lectures, tutorials, assignments and exams.
- Learn about university life by enjoying the use of campus services and facilities.

During the programme you will:

- Gain an understanding of the academic requirements of degree study at the Faculty of Education and Social Work.
- Develop your skills in learning, communication, critical thinking, essay writing and time management.
- Take courses relevant to future study in Education, Teaching, Social Work or Sport, Health and Physical Education.

Where can this pathway take you?

Successful completion of the Education and Social Work pathway helps you to gain admission to Faculty of Education and Social Work or Faculty of Arts programmes at the University of Auckland.

You could apply for selection into one of the following programmes:

- Bachelor of Education (Teaching) – Primary or Huarahi Māori specialisations
- Bachelor of Arts – Education major
- Bachelor of Sport, Health and Physical Education
- Bachelor of Social Work

The Tertiary Foundation Certificate can also help you gain admission to other University of Auckland degree programmes.

auckland.ac.nz/tfc

To apply for the Tertiary Foundation Certificate, you must be a permanent resident or citizen of New Zealand. If you left school before the end of Year 13, you must have been out of school for at least a calendar year to be eligible.

New Start

Are you over 20 years old and thinking of coming to university? New Start is a part-time preparation and bridging programme. If you achieve the necessary grades and meet any additional entry requirements, you can apply for admission to an undergraduate degree programme.

Highlights:

- Bridge your way into a range of University of Auckland undergraduate degree programmes.
- Study part-time with day or evening courses.

During the programme you will:

- Gain a realistic introduction to first-year study.
- Develop the skills and confidence to begin your university education.
- Meet experienced university lecturers and discover what university is all about.

auckland.ac.nz/newstart

To apply for a New Start course, you must be 20 years or over and a New Zealand citizen or permanent resident. You also need a good standard of English.

UniBound

If you're a Māori or Pacific school leaver, the free UniBound Summer programme will prepare you for your studies. The programme is split into two streams: Tōia ki Waipapa for Māori rangatahi and UniBound Pacific for Pacific fanau/aiga.

Highlights:

- Become familiar with university services and resources.
- Develop academic numeracy and literacy skills.
- Explore Pacific and Māori cultures and knowledge.
- Take part in off-campus learning activities.
- Enjoy team building activities and peer mentoring.
- Work on projects that include technology and the culture of research.

UniBound Summer students who have not achieved University Entrance or received an offer from the University will be considered for a place in UniBound Foundation, which is a part of the Tertiary Foundation Certificate (TFC). Applications to the TFC will be made for relevant students during UniBound Summer.

auckland.ac.nz/unibound

“Before starting the Bachelor of Education (Teaching) programme I completed the TFC programme. The certificate prepares you academically, mentally and socially for the bachelor programme.”

“I learned skills in time management, how to tackle academic readings, how to prioritise my studies alongside my life commitments and how to transition to being a first-year student without knowing anyone. A bonus was knowing that one of our lecturer was a past TFC student and that she was not only teaching us for foundation but for the bachelor programme too.”

“The best thing about studying at the South Auckland campus is ‘He tangata he tangata’, the people, the people. The staff and students are what make the campus great. Everyone genuinely wants you to succeed and the immense level of support from staff smoothens the stress that comes from assignments and exams.”

“When I first started studying our timetable was whānau focussed with 10am starts and a 3pm finish. It catered to our students who had children. Watching parents being able to study with us was inspiring. Our kaupapa of whānau also meant we had a collective lunchtime break that was used for mentoring. This kaupapa worked for us not only relationally but also academically. When one person succeeded in life we all celebrated. The number of Pasifika, Māori, and overall top scholars that our kaupapa of whānau produced from South Auckland is motivating and something that has kept us hooked into the hope that education offers for all.”

“Following my graduation, I see myself preparing for my first year as a beginning teacher or even enrolling in further studies. In ten years, I see myself continuing to serve our people and community in the same way my mother and past teachers have done.”

“There is a need for more teachers in New Zealand so that we can give future generations the best possible education to set them up for success.*”

“After I finished high school, I took a gap year and moved to England where I taught disabled children. This experience really gave me a passion for teaching and working in children’s education. When I came back, I decided to enrol in the Bachelor of Education (Teaching) programme and begin working towards my teaching qualification. And so I’m now able to turn my passions into a rewarding career.”

“What I really enjoyed about studying this programme is how diverse the courses are. The courses really provide you with a lot of knowledge across various aspects of education and teaching. Studying at the Epsom campus is great as you are in the same location as all the other teaching students to discuss ideas and assignments.”

“The practical placements that you do throughout the programme are also really great. The teachers that guide you give you the most beneficial advice and really support your learning and development. Down the line I am excited to work toward becoming a principal or a senior teacher at a low decile school in New Zealand.”

“I would recommend the Bachelor of Education (Teaching) programme to everyone who is interested in education and teaching.”

“Over the last three years, studying te reo Māori has been the vehicle that has grown my love for teaching. I have had the pleasure of teaching te reo to a range of diverse individuals. I have taught children, adults, kaumātua and whānau. I have also worked as a Kaiāwhina within a Kura Kaupapa Māori and it was there that I realised how important the impact a positive educational experience has on young child’s life.

“I gave birth to my mātāmua last year and it was then that I believed that teaching would be a great career path not only for myself, but my small family too.”

Interested in teaching?

A Bachelor of Arts in Education provides a strong foundation to progress to a one-year Graduate Diploma in Teaching, specialising in Early Childhood, Primary or Secondary. (See pg. 20 for more details.)

Modules

Complement the skills you will develop through your BA with our new Education modules (optional groupings of three courses on a particular theme) to cater to your career goals.

Teaching in Society

Develop your understanding of teaching beyond classrooms to public educative spaces such as museums and galleries, libraries, virtual worlds and the streets. Gain a critical understanding of teaching traditions and practices in various environments. Foster the ability to engage critically with ideas.

Community Service in Youth Development

Critically examine current issues facing NZ youth, including social justice, inequality and institutional bias. Develop relationship-building skills by working as a youth mentor and hone your abilities in youth advocacy, policy and programme development.

“What I love most about the Education courses I have taken is how well they are taught.”

“I have always wanted to study education but wasn’t sure if I wanted to go straight into teaching. The Bachelor of Arts programme majoring in Education allowed me to learn a whole set of other subjects that the arts programme offered while allowing me to learn about education as a subject.”

“My Education courses were delivered by an incredibly supportive faculty with teachers who remember their students’ names, cater to their learning needs, and build an engaging positive environment.”

“Throughout my degree, I have taken classes from treaty politics to youth mentoring and classroom behaviour. I particularly enjoyed learning about the history of education through the means of photography, videos, and writings. I appreciate how much New Zealand History I was able to learn.”

“I am now completing my Graduate Diploma in Teaching Primary specialisation. I am excited to start teaching across primary and secondary schools specialising in social studies. As the revamp of the social studies curriculum in Aotearoa takes place in the next year in which learning NZ history will become compulsory, I would love to be a part of the great row of teachers who will lead that.”

“In ten years time, I hope to continue learning in order to support our future generation of tamariki as best as I can. Since children cannot easily hold an active voice in our society, I hope to help raise their needs. I am grateful that I took education as an arts subject. The course has a range of subjects to choose from and each course is taught in an organised and spirited manner. If you are wanting to go into education in some form or another, I would highly recommend following this route. Not only does the course teach you about how to learn but it touches on topics revolving around philosophy, psychology, history, and sexualities.”

- Explore psychology and sociology for social/human services
- Study cultural diversity, te reo Māori, tikanga and kaupapa Māori approaches and the place of Te Tiriti o Waitangi in social work

In subsequent years you will:

- Develop your skills in working with youth, families, elderly and people with disabilities in diverse cultural communities
- Work alongside social work professionals during practical placements in organisations
- Build on your theoretical knowledge base and mātauranga Māori, with courses in te ao Māori, the theory and practice of social work, including the policy environment, law and the state

Depending on your grades, you may be eligible to complete the final year of your Social Work degree at honours level. An honours degree is a postgraduate qualification that demonstrates an advanced level of critical and analytical ability and allows you to investigate an area of interest through a research project.

Master of Social Work (Professional)

If you already hold an undergraduate degree in a related discipline, you may be able to study at masters level to become a qualified social worker in just two years. This programme prepares you for a professional career in social work, building on your qualification in a related area such as social sciences, sociology, psychology, health sciences or human services.

auckland.ac.nz/mswprof

Choose your career

Social worker

There is a shortage of qualified social workers in many countries, particularly New Zealand, Australia and the UK.

By studying with us, you will be qualified to work as a social worker in a wide range of fields, such as:

- Health
- Child and family services
- Child protection and justice
- Youth work
- Schools
- Mental health and addiction
- Disability services
- Elder care

Our degrees are recognised by the Social Workers Registration Board and international bodies, allowing you to apply for social work registration.

You can also go on to postgraduate study and research.

* Late applications will be considered if places are available.

This programme is at postgraduate level. For information on masters programmes visit education.auckland.ac.nz/pg-programmes

“My aspirations to become a social worker is founded on my own experiences and what I have endured throughout my life journey.

“My somewhat broken upbringing inspires me to help those in need, so that they and generations after them can experience a supportive, stable and healthy environment to grow and live in. Although I have several years of experience in voluntary work, I knew that studying a Bachelor of Social Work at the University of Auckland would better prepare me to make a real change in my community.

“What I have enjoyed most about the programme is building relationships with a diverse range of people who bring a wealth of experience and passion to this course. Meeting and working alongside students and lecturers with the same aspirations for change is very inspiring. As the skill of building relationships is the cornerstone of Social Work practice, it has been an asset to my academic journey.

“The best thing about the Epsom campus is the close-knit community. Staff and students are so warm and welcoming, which makes studying that much easier and more enjoyable. The culture at Epsom campus doesn’t make you feel small, you experience a sense of family and belonging.

“After I graduate I’d like to work in a local organisation that seeks to enhance the health and well-being of families. In ten years time, I would love to still be in a position of helping people, whether that be through my role as a seasoned Social Worker or part of an organisation in the community. Giving back to my communities in South Auckland is my highest goal.

“I would recommend the Bachelor of Social Work to anyone who enjoys building relationships and helping people. This Programme will equip you through practical and theory-based learning, with the right skills and knowledge to make a difference”

“I love learning about how we can make sport a safe space for our youth and our communities.”

“From a young age, I’ve always been passionate about sport. Netball was my favourite sport and I played it for eleven years and coached for five years. I have always wanted to study at the University of Auckland and when I realised that the university offered a degree in Sport, Health and Physical Education, I knew it was something I wanted to pursue.”

“The best things about this programme were the variety of courses being offered and the endless support from our lecturers. I believe the BSHPE programme offered me a good balance of theory and practical learning opportunities. A lot of the students and I worked part-time as sports coaches while studying, the lecturers were really understanding and were always there to help with assessments or when we felt overwhelmed with our workload. They were very engaging and would always make sure that all our questions were answered.”

“Toward the end of my third year, I was offered a position in the Ministry for Primary Industries (MPI) Graduate Programme. I am now coming up to one year with MPI and am pursuing a career in policy. The BSHPE degree equipped me with transferable skills such as being a critical thinker and problem-solver, having strong communication skills, learning how to step out of my comfort zone, and most importantly, it helped build on my cultural capabilities in better understanding tikanga Māori and Te Tiriti o Waitangi.”

“If you’re passionate about sport, health and/or physical education and looking for somewhere with a supportive environment with a flexible programme that challenges you then the Bachelor of Sports, Health and Physical Education is the one for you.”

* Late applications will be considered if places are available.

“I decided to become a teacher as my primary school teachers really helped improve my learning abilities, my self-confidence and my general interest and excitement to learn.

“I wanted to be able to provide that for children in a classroom and give back what my teachers gave to me. I knew teaching would provide me with a sense of job satisfaction and make a positive difference for ākonga.

“What I have enjoyed most about the programme is the wider curriculum workshops where we were able to experience a variety of subjects such as visual arts, drama, science, and music. These were lots of fun and made us feel like kids at primary school again as well as being informative and providing us with ideas for our future teaching practice. The programme is very collaborative, you get to work with awesome like-minded people and make new friends.

“I would recommend the Graduate Diploma in Teaching if you are passionate about learning, can have a laugh, and are prepared to put in the mahi! Teaching is a really rewarding career and this one year programme is an excellent choice when looking to enter the profession.”

Kate Jackson

Graduate Diploma in Teaching (Primary)

“Teachers are one of the best things about the programme. Above and beyond, they know what they’re teaching, they’re practised professionals with years of experience in the classroom, and they’re actively researching the subject they lecture about. They put so much care into their work and manaaki the students in their classes.

“Both of the practicum schools I was placed at took great care of me and I had a brilliant time teaching students for the first time. I went from observation, to helping students in the classroom, to teaching small exercises, and then eventually all the way to taking a full class.

“Going into next year, I feel like I am backed by teaching theories and real-life classroom experience. I have more knowledge and skills about how to plan classes and create content. And I have confidence to do the job that I absolutely didn’t have before.”

Tom Clarke

Employer's voice

“Working with an Iwi like Ngāti Whātua Ōrākei is inclusive experience that will help provide you with the Mātauranga of Mana Whenua. Learning our history, Kawa and Tikanga will enrich your skills sets when working with Māori whānau.”

“Bachelor of Social Work student Sam Denne came to us on his practicum. He was the first Social Work student to complete their placement within our Whānau Ora team at Whai Māia. Sam is of non-Māori descent but was very passionate about learning about our Iwi, the history, the Tikanga, the Reo and Waiata. He was dedicated to supporting our Whānau to reach their goals and aspirations.”

“Sam arrived to practicum equipped to fulfil the duties of his placement. He was proficient in his engagement with whānau, he maintained professionalism and confidentiality and build trust with whānau. He was always willing to partake in other roles especially when it came to the COVID response our Iwi undertook. He loved to engage in Karakia, Kapa Haka and Reo.”

“You will experience innovation, creative flare, and real transformational thinking. The whānau ora model will enlighten you to think of methods of aspirational and mana enhancing practise that you can carry into any social work role you undertake. You don't have to be Māori to explore this, we welcome all. Don't be afraid to step out of your comfort zone.”

Te ao tauira Student life

With faculty clubs, events and a community vibe, you'll leave the Faculty of Education and Social Work with great memories – and friends for life.

Education and Social Work Student Association (ESSA)

Run by students, for students, the Education and Social Work Student Association (ESSA) makes being a student a positive and fun experience. Get involved with social and sports events, free soup days, food parcels, hot drink drop-ins and student training and development. ESSA will also provide welfare services, help you access hardship grants and make your voice heard through student class representatives.

Pasifika Success

Our team of former students at Pasifika Success help Pacific students to become confident and independent learners in a culturally supportive environment. Unlock your full potential with the help of Tuakaqu Mentors, who will provide academic support, study skills development and advice. They can help with queries about scholarship applications, StudyLink, personal issues, your future after university and more.

Te Korowai Atawhai

Te Korowai Atawhai provides a safe space for tauira Māori to explore their cultural identities and achieve their academic goals. You'll have academic and pastoral support throughout your programme of study at the faculty, including workshops and wānanga throughout the year to develop your study skills. Te Korowai Atawhai has a student common space where you can build whanaungatanga, study and relax with other tauira Māori. Pouwhirinaki will provide extra academic support as well as mentorship facilitated by a tuākana/teina model.

Education and Social Work Rainbow Network

The University is committed to supporting LGBTQITakatāpui+ students to have a positive and successful university experience. The faculty Rainbow Network provides opportunities to meet and connect with fellow LGBTQITakatāpui+ students and staff, runs events and provides a voice for our faculty's students within the wider University community.

First Year Experience Programme

Our First Year Experience Programme links you to an experienced student, who acts as a mentor for your first year. Your mentor will help answer all questions, big or small, and help you make friends, build networks and get you used to life at the University.

Va'atele Folauga for Success programme

All new Social Work and Sport, Health and Physical Education students will attend a Va'atele Folauga for Success programme, a three-day orientation and induction programme. With sessions on goal setting and balancing your responsibilities, academic workshops, a trivia quiz, and other fun events, the induction builds a sense of whakawhanaungatanga and matakāinga between staff and students.

Bachelor of Education (Teaching) Primary

"It feels like home here. Coming from a small town, I was worried that I'd feel out of place in a big city. But as soon as I was welcomed at the pōwhiri, I knew I belonged. Through roles at ESSA and Te Korowai Atawhai, I've enjoyed supporting other students during their first year of university. Building friendships has been a highlight of my time at the faculty."

Which campus is right for you?

Epsom Campus: 74 Epsom Avenue, Epsom, Auckland*

Nestled amongst pōhutukawa trees, the Epsom Campus is just a 10-minute drive from the hustle and bustle of the city. It's the main base of the Faculty of Education and Social Work. We offer a community-minded, supportive, multicultural environment where everyone has the opportunity to build strong bonds with their lecturers and peers.

The campus is also only a few minutes' walk from the cafés and shops of Mt Eden Village. The campus has a full range of facilities, including a gym, tennis courts, the Sylvia Ashton-Warner Library, and Te Aka Matua ki Te Pou Hawaiki Marae. Epsom Campus is just a short bus ride from most of our University accommodation options.

Note: Future facilities planning indicates that courses based at Epsom Campus will be taught on City Campus from 2024. Students starting a qualification at Epsom in 2023 may complete subsequent years at the City Campus.

Te Papa Ako o Tai Tokerau: 13 Alexander Street, Whangārei*

Located in the heart of Whangārei, the Tai Tokerau Campus offers popular university programmes within a close-knit community. The faculty offers selected programmes in English and Māori-medium teaching and preparation programmes for university study. Postgraduate support is also available for teachers and educators based in Northland, with some postgraduate courses delivered at the campus or online. Our campus of around 150 students is a friendly and supportive learning environment. There are dedicated support services and a branch of the Sylvia Ashton-Warner Library is on campus.

City Campus: Symonds St, Auckland City

The City Campus is located in the heart of Auckland City and is the main campus of the University. Education courses within the Bachelor of Arts, most General Education options and some courses within the Bachelor of Sport, Health and Physical Education and the Bachelor of Education (TESOL) are taught on City Campus. Students at other campuses also have access to the wide range of facilities and services located at City Campus.

Te Papa Ako o Tai Tonga: 6 Osterly Way, Manukau, South Auckland

The University offers a range of preparation and foundation programmes in South Auckland, to prepare you for university study. You can also complete a full primary teaching degree with your practicum placements in your local community. For teachers and educators who work or live nearby, this is a great campus in which to connect with other postgraduate students and researchers to support your ongoing learning. This campus is also popular with students travelling from the Waikato and East Auckland areas.

Te whakauru mai Entry

To gain entry to your degree programme, you must meet admission, programme and undergraduate English language requirements. Our friendly team will help you every step of the way!

New Zealand secondary school applicants

For entry based on a New Zealand secondary school qualification, you must first meet the University Entrance (UE) standard – UE is the minimum standard needed to enrol at a New Zealand university. For entry requirements based on NCEA, Cambridge International and IB qualifications, see auckland.ac.nz/entryrequirements

You must also meet the entry requirements for your chosen programme. See the chart below.

Alternative entrance pathways

Overseas secondary school applicants

You must meet the equivalent of the New Zealand University Entrance standard as well as the entry requirements for the programme you wish to enrol in. These are listed on our website. If you have completed a qualification not listed on our website, we will assess your application on an individual basis. You must also meet our undergraduate English language requirements.

auckland.ac.nz/entryrequirements

Special Admission

If you are over 20 years of age on the first day of the semester you plan to commence study, are a New Zealand or Australian citizen or permanent resident and have no formal University Entrance qualification, you may be eligible for Special Admission. You will need to meet the other selection requirements for your programme.

auckland.ac.nz/special-admission

Discretionary Entrance

If your Year 12 results are exceptional, you are aged under 20, are a New Zealand or Australian citizen or permanent resident and do not hold a University Entrance qualification, you can apply for admission by Discretionary Entrance. You must have National Certificate of Educational Achievement (NCEA) Level 2 or higher. You will be assessed on your academic background and a recommendation from your school principal.

auckland.ac.nz/entryrequirements

Home-school applicants

You must achieve the UE standard from a recognised secondary qualification or foundation programme. You must also meet the requirements for your chosen programme.

auckland.ac.nz/apply

If you are in your final year of secondary school, you should apply before your final school results are released. It is advisable to apply for the programmes that you might wish to enrol in well before the closing date. However, late applications will be considered if places are available.

You'll receive an acknowledgement email asking you to provide supporting documents (and in some cases to complete other requirements) before your application can be assessed. You may need to complete a literacy and numeracy assessment and/or attend an interview. See pg. 26 for details.

We will assess your application and inform you of the outcome via email. You can check your application status at any time on the "Your applications" section of the Application for Admission.

If your application is successful, we'll email you an offer with instructions on how to accept it.

Once you've accepted your offer, it's time to enrol. You can find out which courses you should enrol in at education.auckland.ac.nz/enrolment
